I. DEFINITION OF THE COLLECTION
The Cloisters Library collects research material for the study of medieval art and related topics. The collection of approximately 15,000 volumes encompasses medieval architecture, painting, illuminated manuscripts, stained glass, sculpture, and decorative arts. Works on medieval history and gardens are also collected.

The Cloisters Museum and Gardens, the branch of The Metropolitan Museum of Art devoted to the art and architecture of medieval Europe, was assembled from architectural elements, both domestic and religious, that largely date from the twelfth through the fifteenth century.

The Library opened in May, 1938, at the time of the museum collection’s rehousing into a new building in Fort Tryon Park in northern Manhattan. Its initial holdings were amassed thanks to a financial commitment from John D. Rockefeller, Jr. and book donations from the medieval Art scholarly community, given in honor of founding Director Joseph Breck, who had died in 1933, during the time that the Cloisters was preparing to expand and move from the smaller museum originally created by George Grey Barnard in 1914.

II. DEFINITION OF AUDIENCE
Constituency of the library is The Cloisters and Metropolitan staff, lecturers, and volunteers and outside researchers of medieval art and The Cloisters itself. Along with the library holdings, the 50+ archival collections held and overseen by the Library are of regular use to both in-house and outside users.

Cloisters Library materials can be requested through Watsonline for use at the Watson Library or in Met staff offices or for use at outside institutions through Interlibrary Loan.

III. SUBJECT SCOPE
The Library's holdings reflect the scope of The Cloisters art collection and are not intended as a global, comprehensive medieval studies collection. Areas of medieval art studies outside of the following scope are to be collected by the Thomas J. Watson Library or the departmental library in the Medieval Art Department (at the request of Medieval staff). Additional copies of titles that fall within the Cloisters collection scope may also be acquired for the Watson Library or one of the other libraries in Metropolitan Museum, and the existence of a title in another Met library should not necessarily preclude the acquisition of a Cloisters Library copy.

While the following guidelines are intended to guide the general practices of Cloisters Library acquisitions, its full holdings displays a valued diversity that reflects a history of exhibitions and scholarly projects by curatorial, educational, conservation, and garden staffs that have generated purchases that, at times, fall outside of the scope of the museum’s collection (and, indeed, outside of art-specific research). Therefore, there will be instances of museum staff-driven suggestions and requests that expand on these parameters, and will only add to the richness of the full Met libraries' holdings.

IV. CATEGORIES AND FORMATS

Monographs
Monographic titles that fall within the parameters of its collecting scope are selected for their scholarly content.

Oeuvre Catalogs
Catalogues of Western European visual artists working between 800-1525 are collected extensively.

Collection Catalogs
The library acquires catalogs of both public and private collections that have relevance to The Cloisters collection.

Exhibition Catalogs
Exhibition catalogs from museums, art galleries, foundations and other venues are collected when they fall within the scope of the library collection.
Guidebooks
The Library acquires guidebooks to museums with significant medieval holdings that may not have other published collection catalogs.

Conference Proceedings, Festschriften, Collected Essays
These works are acquired when their scope falls within the Library’s collecting parameters.

Dissertations
Unpublished dissertations that are not available electronically via Watsonline are acquired when they fall within the scope of the Library’s collection.

Reference Materials
Reference materials may include:
- Iconographic guides
- Reference works on artists’ techniques and materials
- Foreign language dictionaries
- Historical atlases
- Medieval studies encyclopedias or glossaries
- Horticultural references (in consultation with Gardens staff)
- Specialized reference works on religion (ecclesiastical history, monasticism, and liturgy)
- A second copy of any significant publications concerning The Cloisters.

Periodicals
When considering a new periodical subscription, titles to which staff already have digital access or availability through the Watson Library should be avoided.

Electronic resources
The Cloisters Library provides access to electronic resources via Watsonline and the library portal. DVDs and other video formats are collected when appropriate.

Auction and sale catalogs
The Library does not collect auction and sale catalogs unless specifically requested by Cloisters or Medieval Art department staffs.

Microforms
The Library does not collect microforms.

Offprints
Offprints from publications not held by the Met libraries are added very selectively. Consideration is given to articles written by curatorial staff or devoted entirely to objects in The Cloisters collection.

Special collections
The Library will consider the purchase of facsimiles of notable examples of illuminated manuscripts or Medieval horticultural texts of significant artistic value. High cost facsimiles acquired by the Watson or Morgan libraries should generally be avoided.

V. COLLECTING GUIDELINES

Gifts
Gifts to the collection are added using the same criteria with regard to their scholarly value as purchased materials. Gifts are accepted with the understanding that the Library has complete discretion over the option to retain. The Library does not rely extensively on exchange programs to acquire materials.

Exhibition catalogs related to outgoing loans
The Library receives copies of catalogs of exhibitions to which art objects from The Cloisters have been lent. Borrowing institutions are contractually required to supply at least one copy of the exhibition catalog to the curatorial department which is then deposited in the Library.

Imprint
The Library collects in-print publications and some antiquarian material.

Languages and translations
The Library acquires resources in all Western European languages for those subjects collected comprehensively. If a publication is available in more than one language, English is preferred. However, acquisition will not be delayed when a foreign language edition is published before an English language edition. The Library collects exhibition catalogs from multiple venues in various languages. If a foreign language edition has different content from the English edition or if the English translation is poor, an additional copy in the original language may be acquired.

Multiple copies
In most instances, the Library acquires only one copy of any given publication. Added copies of selected titles may be acquired where heavy use is expected. At least 2 copies of significant works relating to The Cloisters should be collected.

New editions and Reprints
New editions are acquired when they reflect significant changes and additions in comparison to the previous editions. The Library acquires reprints only if the title is new to the collection or if the Library’s original copy is in poor condition or notably of heavy use.

VI. RELATION TO OTHER LIBRARY COLLECTIONS
The Cloisters Library serves primarily The Cloisters staff and researchers but also, as an integrated member of The Metropolitan Museum of Art libraries, complements the holdings of the Thomas J. Watson Library and departmental libraries. Its books are available through interdepartmental mail to researchers working at the main building of the Met and also eligible for Interlibrary Loan (ILL) for use outside of the Museum.

VII. WITHDRAWAL
Decisions to withdraw specific items, like decisions to acquire new titles, are made within the context of the total collection policy, in order to maintain overall integrity of the collection. Considerations for withdrawing materials:
- Materials outside of the scope of the Library’s current collection development policy
- Excess number of duplicate copies
- Obsolete materials
Any decision to withdraw multiple titles or a serial holding should have the consent of Cloisters senior staff.

VIII. REPLACEMENT
If printed material has been lost or damaged, criteria for replacement should follow the same guidelines as acquisition of new material. Replacement copies may be ordered for badly damaged books when conservation is determined not to be appropriate.

IX. PHYSICAL CAPACITY OF THE LIBRARY
The physical capacity of the existing book shelving in the Cloisters Library is approximately 1935 linear feet, at 1 inch per volume, this allows for roughly 23,000 monographs and serial volumes.

Additionally, there are 584 linear feet of shelving for archival material.
